Columbus Fire & EMS is proud to offer this free training program

Going from buddy to boss (firefighter or engineer to company officer) is one of the biggest challenges in today's fire service. The next biggest challenge is going from company officer to chief officer and shift commander. Most of us signed up to fight fire and save lives, not drive a desk, nor take on the tremendous amount of administrative responsibility that goes along with being a chief officer in today's fire service. You're past going from buddy to boss – you're going from "boss to the dark side," as some might say.

This session is intended for current and aspiring chief fire officers and will assist and support you in your critical role of being a major part of the command, leadership, and management team.
